I am available on 12/9 or 12/15, but not the other two dates.

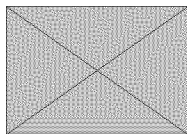

If on 12/15 I will need to be done and back to the office by 4 pm at the latest.

Also, so you guys can think about this, we've been getting hit pretty regularly with snow storms in November, and December is unfolding to be more of the same, so travel can be a bit challenging, both flying and driving. Just something to consider.

Thanks,

Dante,

Considering travel and prior commitments, it looks like the majority of my folks could be available on the following dates: December 9, 15, 16, 17.

As we have agreed at prior meetings, we should be letting data and facts drive the shape of this investigation, which is why we are proceeding in a phased approach. I might suggest that this meeting could be far more productive if we could wait until we obtain the preliminary data from our initial phase of field investigation. That would provide a solid base of information to base any decisions on. By having further strategic discussions at this point we run the risk of setting a strategy or direction that won't be supported by data that could be in hand early next year. Fundamentally, a strategy can be modified at any time, however it is often hard to modify stakeholder expectations once established.

If you feel that this face to face meeting is critical at this time, the ARC team can be available on the above dates.

Thanks,

-jack

Team,

I am looking to schedule a meeting with the ARC team in December (before December 21st) to plan an overall strategy for the Wabuska Drain OU7 investigation. Please let me know what days you would be available. Assume it is an all-day meeting in Reno or Carson City. Jack will be querying the ARC team as well. Thank you!
